Having enjoyed 10 years in their previous workplace it was time for something new in terms of building and design. This wealth management company is one of those companies who have an acutely strong sense of their own identity and outlook.

They needed a company to establish a sophisticated design, unlike that of any of their mainstream contemporaries, and it had to look great for the next 10 years.

Using the services of the trusted Project Management Company five companies were invited to present their concept ideas and importantly, accurate budgets.

Choosing Blue Jelly for their interpretation and development of the brief and dedicated senior team, we set about detailing every aspect of the design and specification.

Particular focus was placed on constructing a welcoming, friendly, classic and flexible reception and meeting facility. Other key areas included good acoustics, security and ensuring that facilities for staff were excellent and reflected the long term view on people, business and the new workplace.

The last challenge was to implement the project. The building in the heart of the West End, was a section 20, classified, multi-tenanted building and was having significant problems with the central mechanical services.

Working closely with the experienced Project Manager, Blue Jelly co-ordinated the work being carried out by seven contractors overseen by the professional team.
