The Brief

Birketts is a growing, full service, UK top 50 law firm. Their portfolio has been expanding across the South West and with this growth, they needed a permanent workplace in this region. Birketts selected the EQ Building to be their seventh UK workplace, right in the centre of Bristol. Aligning to their ESG strategy this building is BREEAM outstanding, has an EPC rating of A and has committed to deliver Net Zero Carbon (NZC). Their brief was to create an exceptional, client focused space that is warm and inviting whilst enabling their team to work effectively and efficiently.

What We Did

Our designer used biophilia, including natural textures, wood flooring and planting to bring the outside into this stunning workplace. This creates a sense of wellbeing throughout the space and is proven to improve cognitive function and the physical health of the workforce.

The bespoke reception area, complete with client lounge and refreshment station, creates a warm welcome on arrival. Several client-facing meeting rooms wrap around the entrance space giving a seamless experience for Birketts' visitors. These meeting rooms are fitted to the highest standards with careful acoustic treatment, top of the line technology and beautiful, high-end furniture and finishes.

Collaboration and flexible ways of working are supported in the main open plan area with team booths, individual focus pods and group meeting rooms. The breakout area is large enough to support a growing team, providing respite throughout the working day.

The Results

The Birketts team are thrilled with the outcome of this project and love how the space enables them to excite their clients and care for their own team at the same time. It's helping to attract top talent and retain valued members of the team.
